Dear dr. Teddy Purnamirza:

In order to evaluate your paper ID 10431 entitled "Small Radial Line Slot Array (RLSA) Antennas for Wi-Fi 5.8 GHz Devices", it is requested the following action:

In this paper, a brief review in development of small RLSA antennas for Wi-Fi devices are presented. The author designed a small RLSA antenna for point-to-point 5.8 GHz Wi-Fi devices with an optimum design using a previously developed technique, called the extreme beamsquint technique. The contribution of this paper is limited, besides, some issues make it unsuitable for acceptance:

1. What is the reason for choosing parameters in table 2? Is it an optimal design?
2. What is the comparison antenna? Have the author shows great advantages with regard to this baseline?

The manuscript should be at least 8 pages length so we suggest to develop more deeply the Design section, the Results and the Conclusion sections. We suggest to resubmit your paper for a new review process after a duly enhancement of all the sections of the manuscript.

After that, please resubmit your paper for a second round of review.

Sincerely,
Dr. Rongxing Lu, Editor-in-Chief of International Journal on Communications Antenna and Propagation (IRECAP)

Reviewer Responses:

- Most of titles in the references list are not very recent. References list should be improved with more recent journals' papers in the scientific area covered by the manuscript.
- In order to demonstrate the performances of your design and the related disadvantages, in the experimental results section, you should give some considerations among the features of your suggested antenna with respect to other proposed in literature.
- What is the comparison antenna? Have the author shows great advantages with regard to this baseline? Could you justify the values listed in table 1? What are the sources of these information?
- English is understandable but needs correction of grammatical errors and style. We suggest to use our service "English Language Editing". More information can be found to http://www.praiseworthyprize.com/english_service.htm
