1)	Improve discussion on research contribution in abstract and conclusion. The conclusion should be stated and follow from the need, methods, and results; the justification of conclusion should be well articulated	Abstract: There are still a few educational platforms that apply a Knowledge Management System (KMS) concept in conducting its operational work. In addition, several obstacles associated with e-learning implementation trigger the in-effectiveness of collaborative learning. However, the concept of Knowledge Management (KM) from a Sharia perspective has significant implications for education systems. This research, therefore, explored the relevance of the Learning Management System (LMS), KM theory, and Sharia education perspective on the development of the Integrated Knowledge Management System (IKMS) Framework. The IKMS components and structures are literature reviewed and then qualitatively justified through the focus group discussion which involved some students, lecturers, and experts from two Sharia-based Universities in Indonesia. To verify and test the framework, an IKMS-Edu system was developed by focusing on the adoption of a controlling agent system in the online discussion. Herein, filtering and summarization technology was embedded into IKMS-Edu towards a smart controlling agent. This agent adopted the operational work of IKMS-Edu framework leveraging in four constructs activities: viz., knowledge creation and knowledge acquisition (construct 1), knowledge organization and knowledge storage (construct 2), knowledge dissemination and knowledge retrieval (construct 3), and knowledge evaluation and feedback (construct 4). To date, the statistical evaluation of the IKMS-Edu system's acceptance is conducted by disseminating the questionnaires. The mean scores revealed 40.45% of the respondents strongly agreed, and 42.18% agreed on the proposed framework and prototype system thus the framework aided in performing the IKMS during the collaborative learning activities.	Abstract: Page No. 1.

2)	Narrate and justify the research hypothesis	This research tries to answer the research questions on how's the model of integration KM in e-learning thus adopting Sharia's perspectives towards the effectiveness of collaborative learning. The hypothesis stated that the consideration of the Sharia concept in KM and e-learning integration will enrich and provide the new point of west perspectives on the above integration as well as the enhancement of collaborative learning effectiveness.	Introduction: Page 2.
3)	Provide clear justification in the paper in selection of the core concern of the research. Literature connection and critique is poor. Improve on it.	This research tries to answer the research questions on how's the model of integration KM in e-learning thus adopting Sharia's perspectives towards the effectiveness of collaborative learning. The hypothesis stated that the consideration of the Sharia concept in KM and e-learning integration will enrich and provide the new point of west perspectives on the above integration as well as the enhancement of collaborative learning effectiveness. Specifically, this article explored and used the above dimensions based on the concepts of knowledge, knowledge creation, knowledge management, and management strategies in e-learning platforms from the view perspectives of Sharia [26]. The process of disseminating and retrieving data, information, or knowledge of several related concepts was applied as controlling agents during online discussion. This agent provides the application novelty of the integration model.	Page 2
4)	Justify what gap in literature in this work filling	The overwhelming versatility of e-learning is since many factors, viz accessibility, advanced learning, ease of use, and cost-effectiveness on account of an opensource application [17]. E-learning provides services to support the formation of collaborative learning amongst students and educators [18 and 19]. The integration of e-learning and KMS platforms is a new novelty that can improve the optimality of computer-supported education. Unfortunately, there is still inadequate research attention concerning the quality of e-learning as well as its obstacles inside the execution process [17]. It is found that infrastructure, user skills, and ineffective achievement of e-learning goals proved to be a dilemma [16].	Page 2
