Dear authors,

According to the instructions for authors, it is essential that the text follows the style standards and bibliographic requirements described in Guidelines for Authors, strictly following the rules of the APA (American Psychological Association) 7th Ed., Regarding the formatting of the text, figures, tables, citations and, ESPECIALLY, BIBLIOGRAPHY.

According to the new 7th. APA version,

- In both tables and figures, the number and caption are placed on separate lines, above the corresponding object; the figure number is in bold, while the caption is in italics and in

- in the book reference, the place of publication disappears;
- <http://doi.org/xxx> is used exclusively for DOI;
- the inclusion of the expressions "Available in:", "Retrieved from:", and "Access in" for the links disappears

According to the instructions for authors, it is essential that the text follow the style standards and bibliographic requirements described in Guidelines for Authors, strictly following the rules of the APA (American Psychological Association) 7th Ed., Especially regarding the formatting of tables and figures.

To be clearer:

- Any displays of numeric values or text in rows and columns are TABLES and must be formatted accordingly (There are no 'frames').
- Any type of illustration other than a table (graphs, photographs, drawings, diagrams, flowcharts, maps, organization charts, among others) is a FIGURE and must be formatted accordingly (there are no 'Images', 'Maps', 'Graphics', etc.).

- Any type of illustration other than a table (graphs, photographs, drawings, diagrams, flowcharts, maps, organization charts, among others) is a FIGURE and must be formatted accordingly (there are no 'Images', 'Maps', 'Graphics ', etc.).

A horizontal line separates the table title from the column headings. A second horizontal line separates the column headings from the table data.

The table should end with a final horizontal line below the last data line.

These three horizontal lines are the only ones that are present in the table and no vertical lines should be used. In addition, alternate shaded or colored fills to highlight columns and rows are not accepted.

Line entries (leftmost column) should be written in bold and centered vertically on the line (using Word commands; never use paragraph changes for this).

Dear authors,

According to the Instructions for Authors, in the case of an article that publishes the results of research carried out with human beings, it is essential to include in the text information regarding the proper approval by appropriate independent ethical review boards (In Brazil, CEP/Conep System, with identification of CEP and protocol number) and attach proof of ethics approval (report from the CEP/Conep System, in the case of Brazil) in PDF version as a supplementary document. If there was no submission to an Ethics Committee, it is necessary to include a paragraph or footnote in the Methodology section

- informing if the Free and Informed Consent Term (ICF) has been signed,
- justifying the reason for not having been requested prior ethical evaluation by the appropriate councils of the research project from which the present work arises and assuming and
- explicitly exempting Acta Scientiae from any consequences arising therefrom, including full assistance and eventual compensation for any damage resulting from any of the research participants, in accordance with Resolution No. 510, of April 7, 2016, of the National Health Council of Brazil..

Regards,
