ABSTARCT

Nina Syafitri, 2023: The Effect of Implementing Self-Directed Learning on Students' Speaking Skill at State Islamic Senior High School in Dumai

This research was conducted based on students' problems in speaking, such as students doing speaking tests for achieving good scores, do not want to get punishment, difficulty to be actively learning, getting frustrated when learning to speak, low pronunciation, fluency and vocabulary. The aim of this research was to examine whether or not there is a significant effect of implementing self-directed learning on students' speaking skill at state Islamic senior high school in Dumai. In this quasi-experimental research, the research applied purposive sampling. The total of population were 246 students. Where the class XII MIA 3 as the experimental class consisted of 31 students, and class XII MIA 4 as control class consisted 29 students. Thus, the total sample were 60 students. To collect the data, the researcher used a speaking test to determine the student' speaking ability, and the researcher used questionnaire to determine students' self-directed learning as supported the data which has 23 statements. In analyzing the data, the researcher used Mann-Whitney test formula calculated by using SPSS 25 version. The result of data analysis showed there was a significant difference on students' speaking skill taught by implementing and without implementing self-directed learning, in which Sig (2-tailed) 0.000 had less value than 0.05, then H_a was accepted and H_0 was rejected.

CHAPTER I INTRODUCTION

Background of the Research

Speaking is one of the important skills in English subjects that must be mastered by students. Speaking is deemed to be the most important in learning a foreign or second language among the four key languages skills. Speaking is a language skill that is used to convey information orally. It is supported by Breene (2012) who said that using speaking skill to keep up relationships as well as influence people is part of communication. Besides the other skills and other knowledge, speaking skill can say as one of the important factors for facing the situation every day. Improving speaking skill will help students or people to easily communicate without misunderstanding. In the global world, communication plays a specific role in getting success. People cannot achieve their aim and goals without communicating with others who live all around the world.

Speaking skill is considered more complicated than other language skills. Some people including students in the school have difficulty and problems in speaking. Such as difficulty in pronunciation, fluency, vocabulary, students' motivation and interest in learning to speak, the lack of methods and strategies being taught, and also student difficult to be active in learning. Speaking is more complicated and involves more than just pronouncing words. Students who master speaking may help easy to learn other skills such as reading and writing. Macrh (2015) stated that there are language teachers who argue order to succeed in reading and writing the best important skill that considers is an effective speaking skill.

Nowadays, the development of technology has given an impact on students. One of the impacts that students feel is, they can increase their skills easily, for example speaking skill. Lowerison, J.G (2006) states that the development of technology has given the potential and changed students that passive to active students, and also the learners may be more active and interested in his or her learning through technology. Not only in developing technology that helps students to improve skills with self – directed but the maturation of students as an andragogical approach is also important to discipline in education. The rapid changes in technology and information are followed by conditions in education, requiring students to be able to be self-directed. Moreover, the ability to speak can arise in students because of a sense of desire in themselves. This arises from how students can create their own methods or strategies. Conditions that do not allow for learning that is obtained from the teacher's instructions in obtaining the ability to speak the language, require self-directed in solving these problems.

In fact, the problem that is still found at school is the dependency on teacher instruction for speaking tasks and strategy or method. Learners must be active in the learning process so that the learners can direct themselves. Some difficulties in speaking English are often faced by students. There are some factors that are difficult in speaking such as less vocabulary, pronunciation, fluency, student's anxiety, students less on motivation in speaking, etc. Leong, Ahmadi (2017) said students who have low self-esteem, high anxiety, and low motivation in speaking have serious difficulties in speaking skill despite having acceptable linguistic skills. In addition Putri (2020) stated that there are some factors that cause difficulties in speaking such as student's own personal factors, factor of teaching strategies, the curriculum factor and the environmental factor.

The tendency of the teaching given by the teacher to students such as planning, and the knowledge that there are difficult methods, makes students also feel or see the difficulty of being active in the learning process. Especially in learning to speak. Students may be able to make a change in dealing with difficulties in speaking. Self-directed learning from students will help students take responsibility for their learning through easily accessible information sources or teamwork to plan learning programs that address their personal goals. One of the problems that always occurs in schools is how to improve speaking skill well and effectively. Khan (2013) also mentioned that the main cause of student learning difficulties and poor achievement, especially in speaking skill is that the teacher has very limited exposure to difficult and appropriate instructional strategies. Therefore, students experience difficulty in speaking because of the lack of opportunity to practice speaking in class and also difficulties in the teaching strategy given by the teacher.

Based on the explanation above, self – directed learning in speaking actually is needed by students in the school to support their learning process. Method or strategy will affect a student's learning skill. However, the studies that discuss self – directed in speaking skill are rarely conducted, especially in Indonesia. In this regard, most of the research studies focus on self- directed learning in economic education (e.g. Siminica and Traistaru, 2013), self-directed learning and self- efficacy belief among Iranian EFL learners at the advanced level of language proficiency (e.g. Basereh and Pishkar, 2016) collaborative and self – directed learning processes : a case study in Malaysian chemistry PBL lesson (e.g. Peen and Arshad, 2017), self- directed learning readiness (SDLR) among foundation students from high and low proficiency levels to learn English language (e.g. Xuan, Razali and Samad, 2018).

Moreover, other studies examined how written advising strategies in self- directed learning modules and the effect on learning (e.g. Jo Mynard, 2012), the impact of self – directed learning strategies on reading comprehension (e.g. Khodabandehlou, Jahandar, Seyedi, and Abadi, 2012) , ESL students’ readiness for self-directed learning in improving English writing skill (e.g. Adnan and Sayadi, 2021), effect of students’ self- directed learning abilities on online learning outcomes: Two exploratory experiment in electronic engineering (e. g. Po-Nan Chou, Ph.D, 2012), The effect of formative testing and self – directed learning on Mathematics learning outcomes (e. g. Sumantri and Satrina , 2016),

Based on some previous research mention above, it can be said that most of the previous research aimed to focus on discussion self- directed in economic education, discussing the relationship between self-efficiency belief and self-directed learning, investigating the occurrence and types of collaborative and self-directed processes, explore students' self – directed learning readiness, to find out the impact of self-directed learning on student's reading comprehension, investigate the relationship between personality traits and readiness for self – directed learning, to show the positive relationship between engineering students' self – directed and online learning, determine the effect of formative testing and self- directed learning on mathematics learning outcomes. On the other hand, research that focuses on discussing the effect of self-directed learning on Iranian intermediate EFL learners' speaking accuracy (e.g. Majedi and Pishkar, 2016). Therefore, this research is important to test whether or not there is a significant different on students' speaking skill by implementing self- directed learning

Besides, practical problem related to self – directed learning in students' speaking skill were also found at state Islamic senior high school 1 Dumai. Currently state Islamic senior high school 1 Dumai uses School Based Curriculum (K13) which places English as one of the subjects that must be taught once a week and teach speaking skill according to the curriculum. Based on the preliminary research at state Islamic senior high school 1 Dumai, the researcher interviewed the English teacher to know the level of the students' speaking skill. From that interview, the researcher found that most of students still had problems in speaking. Some of the students do speaking test for achieving the good score. Some of the students did not want to get punishment from the teacher, and to fulfill the assignment that teacher has given. Some of students difficult to be active learning. Some of the students were low in pronunciation , fluency, and vocabulary when speaking.

The researcher also found that students got difficulties to understand the material with strategies or methods taught by the teacher. The researcher found that teacher only focused on some strategies or some methods in learning processes , such as cooperative learning, interactive teaching, teacher centered approach, discussion, etc.

Based on the discussion above related the problem in students' speaking, the researcher is interested to do research entitled “The Effect of Implementing Self- Directed Learning on Students’ Speaking Skill at State Islamic Senior High School Dumai”

B. Problem

1. Identification of Problem

Based on the research background, the researcher identifies the problems of speaking skill based interviewing the English teacher, Mr.X on 10 November 2021 at Office, the researcher found the some of the students have difficulties in speaking, as the following identification of the problem:

- a. Some of the students do speaking tests for achieving the good score.
- b. Some of the students do not want to get punishment from the teacher, and to fulfill the assignment that teacher has given.
- c. Some of the students difficult to be active in the learning.

At the same time, from outside of the classroom environment, problems can recognize such as students speaking because of encouragement from parents or friends and having an aptitude for speaking.

2. Limitation of the Problem

Regarding the identification of the problems above, it is very clear the problems are faced by students in the classroom. In this research, the researcher lited the scope of the research. The researcher only examines the students' ability in procedure text. The researcher only focuses on and limits the problems on whether or not there is a significant difference of implementing self-directed learning on students' speaking skill

3. Formulation of the Problem

The formulation is as follows “Is there any significant difference of implementing self-directed learning on students' speaking skill at state Islamic senior high school Dumai?”

Objective and Significances of the Research

1. Objective of the Research

The purpose of this research is to examine whether or not there is a significant difference of implementing self-directed learning on students' speaking skill at state Islamic senior high school Dumai.

2. Significances of the Research

The results of this study are expected to provide benefits in both theoretical and practical aspects. Theoretically, this research hopefully will be able to give benefit in add contribution increase intellectual property.

Practically, it is expected that this research provide knowledge to students and motivate students to develop students' speaking skill. The findings of this study are expected to provide information and insight to teachers about the students' self – directed in students speaking skill. From the results of this research, can provide information on the level of student understanding so that schools can provide tools or materials facilities to support maximum learning outcomes. In addition, for researcher findings are expected to be positive information to people who want to learn English to find out what factors influence students' speaking skill.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

A Theoretical Framework

1. The Nature of Speaking

a. Definition of Speaking

Speaking is a common way to convey the message to build the meaning in communication and for get the information from others. Nunan (1995) speaking is to say words by orally, to communicate by talking and to make a speech. Speaking is a part of second language learning and teaching. Brown (2004) said speaking is a productive skill that can be directly and empirically observed. Therefore, it is important for teachers to teach students to improve their student communicative skill because the students can express their idea.

Speaking is communication that expresses the message from speaker to listener. Furthermore, speaking skill have to be mastered by students in learning English, because speaking is tool for communication. Bahadorfar and Omidvar (2014) stated that speaking is a part of SL learning and teaching, which is a part of act of communication and four of part in language skill that have to mastered by students in learning foreign language.

Speaking is important skill to acquire foreign or second language for showing or express or sharing the idea, opinion, information and also emotion. McDonough & Shaw (1993) said speaking skill will help the individual to produce sentences in real communication, to communicate in language for specific purposes. Among the four major language skills, speaking is considered the most important skill in learning a foreign or second language. That's because , speaking is one skill of language skill that have to master and communication orally by students with apply the true grammatical in sentences and also in the used sentences in the true context. Rao, P.S (2019) speaking skills are the most important skills for students as they are very useful for them in demonstrating their communication skills for various purposes. It is the important part of everyday for interaction on speak fluently and comprehensive. Language leaner should be understand by using their current language. Therefore, teacher have the responsibility to prepare the students to be able to speak in English in the inside or outside the classroom.

Ur in Akhyak and indrawan (2013) said there are characteristics of a successful speaking activity as follows :

- 1) Students talk a lot. The time allocated for speaking activities is done by students, but often most of the time is spent with teacher talking or pauses. This means that students must actively talk to their friends as much as possible.
- 2) Participation is even. In class discussions all students have the opportunity to speak, and the contribution is quite evenly distributed. This means that the class discussion is not dominated by one student, but all students have the same opportunity to speak.

- 3) Motivation and interest in speaking. Students have high motivation to speak English. By having high motivation, students will be interested in learning English, especially speaking. They often try to express their own ideas confidently.
- 4) The language produced is at the acceptable level. Students express themselves in relevant speech, easily understood and with an acceptable level of language accuracy. That is, they use the components of speaking such as pronunciation, grammar, fluency, and comprehension.

b. The Aims of Speaking

In general, the purpose of speaking is to communicate, and inform information. Speaking is a way to convey information or convey thoughts about what you want to say. Tarigan (2008) The main purpose of speech is to communicate, to be able to express thoughts effectively, so the speaker must understand the meaning of everything that wants to be communicated. According to Ardhiani (2021) the basic speaking has three purposes :

1) To inform

Means to provide and report or share idea or inform the arguments, information, feeling or opinion to the listener and give knowledge.

2) To entertain

To entertain means that the speaker can bring services or news or information as an entertainer to the listener from the information obtained.

3) To persuade

To persuade means that the speaker can invite the listener to convince the information that is happening and invite to do something in a certain activity.

c. The Component of Speaking

In the speaking, there is some aspect that has to fill by learners. According to Hughes (2002), there are five components to measure students' speaking as follows:

1) Vocabulary

Vocabulary is one the aspect that support and influence. Vocabulary has an important role in developing the ability to speak. According to Harimurti (1995), vocabulary is a component of language that informs a word's meaning. Therefore, the more vocabulary mastery by students, making students easier to speak and develop students' speaking skill.

2) Grammar

Grammar is an important thing to support students' speaking skill. According to Hornby, he said that grammar is the rules in

A comprehension is a form of student achievement in understanding a word conveyed by the speaker. Comprehension here is the ability of knowing what to be said and what the meaning. In understanding the speaker, the listener must understand what the speaker means.

d. Speaking Skill

Speaking skill is making use of language in uttering words, voice, being able to know and use language, and making a speech. The aim of teaching speaking should improve students' communication skills, because students can express their idea and learn how to follow social and cultural. Burkart (1998) said that speaking skill is an activity that involves of knowledge, such as pronunciation, grammar and vocabulary. Speaking skill is not only about knowledge but an oral expression order to convey meaning. Mackey (2001) defines that speaking skill is an oral expression that involves not only the use of right patterns of rhythm and intonation but also to convey the right meaning.

e. Students' Speaking Skill

Students' speaking skill is skill that have by student which used for communicating with speech. Sihan (2008) said speaking skill is a productive language skill. the students active in speaking by providing communicative language activities and interesting media. Students' speaking skill can also develop their vocabulary, and grammar skill better than written skill. With speaking skill, students can also express their emotion, ideas, say stories, talk, etc.

2. Self -Directed Learning

a. Definition of Self- Directed Learning

The self-directed learning has been identified as an approach to knowledge that relies on a person being responsible and able to be self-directed in their knowledge. Self – directed learning is referred to the educational process that which students have the responsibility for their educational experiences. Addition from Knowles (1975) said self-directed learning is process which individuals to take the initiative, with or without the help of others, in diagnosing their learning needs, formulating learning goals, identifying human and material resources for learning, choosing and implementing appropriate learning strategies, and evaluating learning outcome. Self- directed learning describe that process which individual to take initiative without help another person in make ends meet their learning, the formulate learning objective, identify the material, choosing and apply learning strategy and evaluation.

knowledge, skill, or personal development. According to Gibbons (2002) self-directed learning is any increase in knowledge, skill, accomplishment, or personal development that an individual selects and brings about by his or her own effort using any methods in any circumstance at any time.

Self- directed learning is process by individuals who can assume responsibility in the process of learning. Self-directed learning has been design to motivate the students in learning. Gibbons (2002) state can be taught to think for themselves, work at their own pace, learn in their own way, choose their own goals, and design their own programs. Additional from Garrison in Loeng (2020) defines self-directed learning as an approach where leaners are motivated to assume personal responsibility and collaborative control of the cognitive (self-monitoring) and contextual (self -management) process in constructing and confirming meaningful and worthwhile learning outcome. While teacher as facilitator, guidance and confirmation with the learning progress of students. Self- directed learning can provide benefits to students' cognitive, affective, and psychomotor abilities, these benefits include being able to foster responsibility, improve skills, solve problems, make decisions, think creatively, think critically, grow strong self- confidence, etc. Therefore, students is motivated to responsible toward all their idea or action.

Self- directed learning exhibit many common and measurable. King cited in Edwards (2019) stated that the characteristic self-directed learning such as intrinsic motivation, the ability to select personal goals, self-discipline, the ability to self- assess, and metacognitive skills are key characteristics of self - directed learning.

High levels of self-generated motivation to pursue self-determined goals and objectives and being able to monitor and adjust their own learning. Motivation is a common characteristic of self-directed learning. Intrinsic motivation is the force that enables students to pursue independent learning. One of the most important and fundamental educational goals to create conditions that refer to intrinsic motivation and long -term self -directed learning.

c. Aspect of Self-Directed Learning

According to Tan and Shanti (2011) mentioned that there are three important aspect that needed in Self- directed learning:

1) Ownership of learning

The learner's characteristics of personal in self- directed is important, especially having personal responsibility in learning. Personal responsibility is the cornerstone of self- directed in learning process. Brockett & Hamstra (1991) stated that the students take their personal responsibility in learning process, such as have ownership of their learning, decide learning goals, and responsibility to accept the consequences of their idea or action.

2) Self- management and self- monitoring

Self- directed learning is instructional of process for assessing learners' need, identifying learning resources, implementing learning activities and evaluation learning outcome. It involves between the learner and the teacher about the learning goals, methods of learning, use or resource and assessment. The term of self- management is to describe the aspect in control behavior which relate with management of learning activities.

Self – monitoring focuses on cognitive and metacognitive aspects of learning. Cognitive aspect that involves on thinking, making and integrating knowledge that all are necessary in learning process. While metacognitive aspect refers to thinking or learning to learn, which related to learner's ability to reflect in their learning.

3) Extension of learning

In the learning process, Tan (2011) stated that extends the idea of self- directed form instructional setting to an informal, every setting which he called autodidact. In the learning process , where a learner has max control about the choice of what they learn, where their learn, how their learn, and how evaluate their learning.

d. Factors That Support Self-Directed Learning

There are two factors that support in the framework to assist students in understanding of themselves as learners and how students can increase their self-awareness as learners. Nyambe (2016) stated that the factors that influence self-directed is classified internal factors such as:

- 1) Physical Health
- 2) Availability of free time
- 3) Hobbies
- 4) Self- maturity
- 5) And Intelligence

While, external factors include such as infrastructure, teachers, parents, environment, etc.

According to Boyer in Kapur (2019) , students will possess and interest and enthusiasm, have access to support and guidance, they would be improve their performance and carry out various task and activities well with the following factors. These are, motivation, self-efficacy, support and performance.

a) Motivation

Motivation is a process in starting something, directing and maintaining behavior that focuses on something. Motivation is a form of will and desire of the individual . Boyer in Kapur (2019) motivation should be stringer ad compared to the other aspects of willingness to make us of self-directed learning. internal or external anticipation of rewards created for a goal that must be pursued in an effort to complete it.

b) Self- Efficacy

Self–efficacy refers to the set of beliefs that hold about the ability to complete a task. Self-efficacy is the belief in academic achievement and the ability in the skill. Kapur (2019) self-efficacy is referred to the beliefs of the individual in their qualifications and ability to achieve success in the implementation of various tasks and activities. Self-efficacy is interpreted as a person's belief in the ability to produce the best performance. Self-efficacy is believed to determine how a person behaves, thinks, feels, and also motivates himself toward something.

c) Support

Learning is not only about easy tasks. In improving one's learning and to achieve one's goals and objectives in a well-organized manner, it is important for learners to get some support and guidance both from within and from without. There is a direct impact of the learning process that is organizational or a support learning organization on the willingness of students to utilize directed self-learning.

d) Performance

Performance is a term that primarily refers to the presentation and behavior of individuals. Individuals need to develop other skills, such as, communication, interpersonal, problem solving, decision making and critical thinking. This skill enhancement will help individuals to perform satisfactorily and be able to achieve personal as well as professional goals.

e. Teaching Speaking

Speaking has always been the main focus of language teaching, but both traits of speaking skill and approaches to teaching are undergoing major changes speaking is very needed in language learning. Teaching speaking needs innovation to improve students' speaking fluency and accuracy. Hornby (1995) teaching means giving the instruction to a person (knowledge, skill, etc. Teacher has an obligation to inspire students with interesting and innovative methods, so that students can participate in the speaking learning process. Therefore, the teacher must also be able to provide students with speaking exercises so that they are able to interact and talk with other people in English. According to Elaggoune & Toulgui (2019), there are factors that have an effect on teaching and learning to foreign language. The factor from the survey such as motivation, attitude, language anxiety and gender. And the other factors is the use of instructional media.

The teacher must have a natural responsibility to designing technique in teaching speaking, so that students can understand. Brown cited in Parmawati (2018) stated that there are seven principle or designing teaching speaking techniques:

- 1) Use techniques that cover the illustration of learner needs, from language based focus on accuracy to message -based on interacting, fluency and meaning.
- 2) Provide in substance motivating techniques
- 3) Advise the using of authentic language in meaningful contexts
- 4) Define appropriate feedback and correction
- 5) Capitalize on the natural link between speaking and listening
- 6) Take to opportunity to initiate oral communication
- 7) Encourage the establishment of speaking strategies.

f. Teaching Speaking with Self-Directed Learning

The key person in the development of self-directed learning courses, programs, and schools is the teacher. Developments in education are often determined by specialists and authorities who select outcomes, design curricula, select textbooks and other materials, and then assign programs by the teacher. The program supports the learning process such as model of self-directed learning. Garrison (1997) stated that the model that focuses on various dimensions of self- directed learning such as self- monitoring involving cognitive abilities, self- management involving contextual control, and motivational factors. Through the dimensions of self- directed learning especially in speaking for students, can motivate them that should be exist and grow.

Self-directed learning is simply a way that allows students to decide how students learn and present the materials. It also is not a means for replacing the teacher, as there is still a need for a teacher to guide and model important strategies. Ansu, Gupta, Singh (2022)

Stages of SDL in Learner

Teaching approaches to use

Stage : Self- Directed learner

Students take responsibility for the direction of their learning. Students set their own goals and are able to monitor and assess their performance with or without the existence of teachers. Students have metacognitive and self-regulative ability, as well as, time management and project management skills. They are able to gather required information and critique the quality of the resources.

A teacher's role is a consultant. Self-directed learners need not be loners.

They have collaborative and social skill to work in teams.

- (1) Delegate independent work to students; supervise them
- (2) Allow students to monitor their own
- (3) Individual assignment
- (4) Set structured challenges and let learners execute them on their own
- (5) Assignments that are out of class for extended periods of time
- (6) Support collaborative work between students
- (7) A close relationship between students and assignments given by teachers
- (8) Focus on the product rather than the process
- (9) Teachers should be available to provide advice for change, and monitor on progress.

Relevant Research

Relevant research about students' self- directed learning in speaking skill has been carried out at the various levels and educational contexts. This section will provide a detailed summary based on previous research in the following paragraphs:

1. Research in Indonesia Context.

Azizah and Susanti (2021) examined the correlation between students' speaking skill and self - directed learning in virtual English community. This study involved 20 students who joined the speaking community at a public university in Surabaya. The data collection technique used in this research were speaking rubric and questionnaire. The results showed that there is positive correlation between the students' speaking skill and self- directed learning in the virtual English community. It means that the students who applied self – directed become develop good English speaker in community.

Yulianti , and Miftakh, and Fitriyani (2021) which used a qualitative descriptive approach to determine undergraduate students' perspective on self- directed learning in speaking skill. This study involved 30 students at 8th semester at University Singaperbangsa Karawang. The data collection technique used in this research were interview and questionnaires. The result showed that self- directed learning method has applied their activities to study by all participants , and almost of them are interested and enjoyed learning English because they apply their favorite activities by self – directed method.

Another study was conducted by Mahmud (2019) examined of self- directed learner in speaking English at non-English department in IAIN Sultan Amai Gorontalo. This study involved five students non-English department 2nd semester of Perbankan Syariah in IAIN Sultan Amai Gorontalo by using qualitative method. The data collected by using interview and documentation. The result show that self- directed learning of students in speaking English ability can increase knowledge, skill, and personal development of learners.

2. Research in Other Countries

Aghayani and Janfeshan (2020) conducted a study to investigate the effect of self- directed learning on EFL learners' writing performance. This study involved 30 male EFL learners in one of the language institutes in Iran. The data analysis technique in this study was carried out with test. The result of this study showed that the self- directed learning method had significant effect on the pre-intermediate and intermediate students' performance of English writing ability. In addition, the result also showed that there was a significant difference between the two group of learners in each level regarding their development of English writing ability.

Majedi and Pishkar (2016) which used a quasi- experimental design to evaluate the effect of the self- directed language strategies on students second language speaking. This study involved 60 male and female upper intermediate EFL learners studying English in Talash

Language institutes in Minab, Iran. The data collected were test and questionnaire. The result of this study show that self- directed learning was more significantly affect than the conventional of teaching in developing intermediate EFL Learners' accuracy in speaking ability.

Furthermore, Rafie, and Pazhakh, and Gorijan (2014) explore the role of self- directed learning in developing the speaking of Iranian EFL learners at different proficiency level. This study involved Iranian EFL learners studying at Islamic Azad University, Abadan Branch. Data were collected through interview and test by ANOVA. The result of the data showed that there were significant differences between two group.

Based on all the previous research, it can be seen that there is no research that only focuses on the effect of students' self- directed on speaking skill. However, the researcher discovered the similarities of previous studies, that the similarities there was a significant effect of students' self- directed in speaking. Furthermore, there is difference in previous studies above, namely the location of doing by research, problem of doing by research, and instrument of doing by research. So, this study will be different from the previous research, which in this study the researcher will examine whether or not there is significant affect in students' self – directed in speaking skill

Operational Concept

The operational concept is the concept used to explain the theoretical framework and avoid misunderstanding in this research. In this research, the researcher concludes several indicators to be used as operational concept of students self- directed in speaking skill.

a. Indicator of self- directed learning (Variable X)

This research focuses on students' self- directed to do this research to improve speaking skill. According to Knowles (1975) the indicator based on the conceptual framework of self- directed as variable X (independent variable) :

- 1) Diagnose their own learning needs
- 2) Formulate learning goals
- 3) Identify human and material resources for learning
- 4) Choose and implement appropriate learning strategies
- 5) Evaluate learning outcomes

b. Indicator of Speaking Skill (Variable Y)

There are element that support speaking score. Hughes (2002) stated that support speaking score can be seen by the elements of speaking. They are pronunciation, grammar, vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension. The indicators of speaking skill as variable Y (dependent variable) are:

- 1) Pronunciation
- 2) Vocabulary
- 3) Grammar
- 4) Fluently
- 5) Comprehension

CHAPTER III

METHOD OF THE RESEARCH

Research Design

In this research, the researcher was used quantitative research. While the design of the study is a Quasi- experiment quantitative research design. According to Creswell (2012) stated that quasi-experimental research when we want to establish possible cause and effect between our independent variable. The purpose of quasi-experimental design to know whether significant effect between the independent to the dependent variable, the pretest and post-test are needful to know the result.

This research involves two variables, the first students' self-directed as independent variable or variable X and speaking skill as a dependent variable or variable Y. In short, this research will examine whether or not there is significant effect in students' self – directed in speaking skill at state Islamic senior high school in Dumai.

In guidance this experimental research design, the sample was divides into two groups, the experimental group which taught by implementing Self-directed learning method and control group which taught without implementing self- directed learning method. Both of the groups get pre-test and post-test with the same items.

Table III.1
Research design

Group	Test	Teaching	Test
Experimental (XII MIPA-3)	Pre-test	Using self- directed learning	Post-test
Control (XII MIPA- 4)	Pre-test	Without using self- directed learning	Post-test

B. Time and Location of the Research

1. Time of the Research

This research was conducted from on 30 January – 1 March 2023.

2. Location of the Research

This research was conducted at MAN 1 Dumai. It is located on Bukit Datuk Lama Street, Dumai , Riau 28825.

C. Subject and Object of the Research

1. Subject of the Research

The subject of this research was twelfth science three (XII MIPA 3) and twelfth science four (XII MIPA 4) of MAN 1 Dumai in 2023/2024 in academic year.

2. Object of the Research

The object of this research was implementing of self- directed learning on students' speaking skill.

D. Population and Sample of the Research

1. Population

The population of this research was be the students at twelfth grade of MAN 1 Dumai. According to Arikunto (2010) states population is a collection of all element or set that process one or more attributes of interest. The population of this research consists of four classes for XII science and social program. The specification of the population in this research can be seen as follows:

Table of Population

No	Classes	Total of Students
1	XII MIPA 1	32
2	XII MIPA 2	32
3	XII MIPA 3	31
4	XII MIPA 4	29
5	XII IIS 1	32
6	XII IIS 2	32
7	XII IIS 3	29
8	XII IIS 4	29
Total of students = 246

2. Sample

In this research, there were 8 classes as a population. Since the population in this research was large, it is necessary to need a sample. The sample in this research used the purposive sampling technique. Etikan (2016) stated that purposive sampling is the deliberate choice of a participant due to the qualities the participant possesses. It is a nonrandom technique that does need a set number of participants or does not need underlying theories. Additional, Arikunto (2010) stated that the purposive sampling is the sampling technique used by the researcher if the researcher has certain considerations in taking the sample. Arikunto (2006) if the subject is less than 100, all subjects are better be the sample in th reserach, but if the subject is more than 100, the sample can be 10% - 15% or 20% - 25% or more of population. In this research, the researcher took 25% of the population as the research sample.

The Calculation of the Sample

$$25 \% \text{ of the population} = \frac{25}{100} \times 246 = 61.5$$

Class XII MIPA -3 and XII MIPA – 4 be the sample because all the classes in MIPA have the same level in terms of ability. It means there is no superior class.

From the sample above, the researcher used two kind of classes that consist of experimental class that was taught by implementing Self-directed learning and control class that was taught by implementing conventional learning.

E. Technique of Collecting the Data

The researcher was used tests and questionnaire as techniques in collecting data from this research. The researcher was using questionnaire for support the data of self-directed learning and speaking test to find out the data both pre-test and post-test. The Questionnaire gave before the pre-test. The test or instrument was be tested for its validity and reliability.

1. Questionnaire

In this researcher for collecting data used a questionnaire. This questionnaire used for collect information of self-directed learning. The questionnaire in this research was used the self-directed learning from Guglielmo (1970) which was developed by Ayyildiz and Tarhan (2015) with Exploratory factor analysis (EFA) which supported the final version of the Self-directed includes 40 items of questionnaire with 9 factors. Before the questionnaire is distributed, it needs to be tested the validity by distributing the questionnaire to one of classes. The data is generated into 23 items valid by 9 factors. The questionnaire will use Likert Scale. The Likert scale is a five point scale used by researcher to allow individuals to express their degree of agreement or disagreement with certain statement. Gay (2012) stated that the Likert Scale requires an individual to respond to series of statement by showing whether he or she strongly agrees (SA), agree (A), undecided (U), disagree (D), or strongly disagree (SD).

2. Test

The researcher used a test to measure the effect of speaking skill students' when implementing or without implementing self-directed learning at twelve science program of Islamic senior high school in Dumai. The researcher used pre-test and post-test for collecting the data.

a. Control Group Class

1) Pre-test

Pre-test was given to control group class before the researcher gave treatment. This aim of pre- test is to know the students' score from both group before receiving the treatment. The test is about the material that was delivery that day. Students was given to try to do the test.

2) Conventional Way in the control group class

It was given after the students do the pre-test .for the control group class, the researcher used conventional way. The teacher teach without using self -directed learning

3) Post-test

After study with several time in control group was given pos-test. The post-test exactly same with the pre-test.

b. Experiment Group Class

1) Pre-test

Pre-test was given to control group class before the researcher gave treatment. This aim of pre- test is to know the students' score from both group before receiving the treatment. The test is about the material that was delivery that day. Students was given to try to do the test.

2) Treatment

The treatment was conducted after the pre-test. In the experimental group, the researcher was taught by using self-directed learning

- a) The teacher explains first about self-directed learning
- b) Teacher explained the learning objectives about the procedure text
- c) Students diagnose what they need in learning procedure text
- d) Students are given the freedom to find learning resources, learning materials and learning strategies that are in accordance with the procedure text
- e) Students evaluate their learning by discussing it together in class

3) Post-test

After treatment, the experimental group was given pos-test.

The post-test was exactly same with the pre-test.

Validity and Reliability

1. Validity

The researcher's validity is required in order to assess the student's speaking skill. Sugiyono (2019) stated that there are three types of validation test that can be showed in the instrument, there are construct validity, content validity, and external validity. In this research, the researcher employed content validity to determine the validity of the test and students speaking skill. For the test, the material was taken from textbook and relate with the curriculum and lesson plan. And for the questionnaire was adopted from an expert. To analyze the validity of the questionnaire adopted from previous research. The researchers was compared r value to r table at significant level of 5% is 0.355 ($df = N-2 = 29$). The r value of each item should be higher than the r table to be considered as valid question. In the following table is the result of the instrument validity :

2. Reliability

Inter – rater reliability was applied in this research. Ary (2009) states that reliability between raters means that when two or more observers observe the same individual at the same time, they will produce the same quantitative outcomes. The researcher must find two raters to comment on speaking skill from the students.

While, here are the result of the reliability of the questionnaire using SPSS.25 :

Table III.8
Reliability Questionnaire

Cronbach's	N of
Alpha	Items
0.898	23

From the table above, it can be seen that Cronbach's alpha value is 0.898. This value is higher than the standard Cronbach's alpha which is 0.60. Therefore, it can be concluded that the questionnaire is reliable with the level of reliability was very high.

If the probability (sig) > 0.60 is reliable

If the probability (sig) < 0.60 is not reliable

Technique of Analyzing The Data

Researchers conducted research on items in the aspect of Brown's speaking to analyze students' speaking test. There are five elements that consist of pronunciation, grammar, vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension.

Table III.9
Rubric for assessment of speaking skill

No	Component	Criteria	Level
1.	Pronunciation	Equivalent to and fully accepted by educated native speaker	5
		Errors in pronunciation are quite rare	4
		Errors never interfere with understanding and rarely disturb the native speaker. Accent may be obviously foreign.	3
		Accent is intelligible though often quite faulty.	2
		Errors in pronunciation are frequent but can be understood by a native speaker used to dealing with foreigners attempting to speak his language.	1
2.	Grammar	Equivalent to that of an educated native speaker	5
		Able to use the language accurately on all levels normally pertinent to professional needs. Errors in grammar are quite rare	4
		Control of grammar is good. Able to speak the language with sufficient structural accuracy to participate effectively in most formal and informal conversation on practical, social and professional topics	3
		Can usually handle elementary constructions quite accurately but does not have thorough or confident control of the grammar	2
